TALENT SOURCING ADVISORY

I facilitate the meeting between professionals and companies, at times when both are looking for something important.

About Me

I am a Talent Acquisition consultant who built his own method within the world of head hunting, HR consulting, and professional communication.

Over the years I have learned that an effective search does not stem solely from a job title, but from the ability to read the context: the market, the organization, the people involved, and the tensions that often do not appear in the initial brief.

Today I work as an independent advisor/freelancer for companies looking for managerial and senior professional figures in delicate moments: growth, transformation, organizational transitions, critical replacements, or difficult-to-interpret roles.

My contribution is bringing method, depth of analysis, and direct management of the mandate, without turning the search into a standardized process.

Collaborative and Co-generative Approach

Generic Recruitment	Schoenbech Advisory
Accepting the brief as it is.	Developing a real feasibility plan and helping contextualize the mandate to the market.
Considering the role in isolation.	Mapping the network of organizational interdependencies.
A static pile of PDF resumes.	Navigable digital market intelligence rich in data.

Analytical Market Mapping

At the start of each mandate, I develop an analytical target list: a reasoned representation of the market identifying potential sourcing/scouting areas. Each mapping generally hinges on four dimensions:

- ✓ Strategic Clusters — companies organized by supply chain, business model, and competitive proximity to the client.
- ✓ Geographical Perimeter — sourcing areas consistent with location, role's operational model, and realistic mobility basins.
- ✓ Target Profiles — the figures most consistent with the mandate, including adjacent roles with transferable skills.
- ✓ Screening Criteria — indicators defined upfront, for example: managed responsibilities, regulatory frameworks, track record on KPIs.

The Architecture of Talent

Where that person will have to fit in, with which bosses, teams, internal balances, resistances, and corporate dynamics

Analytical Headhunting

Structured market mapping delivered as a consulting asset.

Level 02: INTERMEDIATE

Organizational Context

Applying the logic of interdependencies to prevent integration "fatigues".

Level 03: MICRO

Integrated Assessment

Combining psychometrics and semantic analysis to distinguish real aptitude from stated experience.

Professionals: Specialized and Highly Sought-after

Alongside manager selection, an important part of my mandates concerns senior professionals: rare vertical skills, often invisible to traditional channels and fiercely contested by a few companies that know how to recognize their value.

- ✓ Hard to identify — they cannot be found with an ad, but by mapping the market in depth.
- ✓ Vertical Specialization — technical and domain know-how that very few truly possess.
- ✓ Highly contested — few qualified candidates, reachable only through a direct and confidential approach.

The Manager as a Network Node

Part of my experience has focused on selecting managerial figures.

A manager is never an isolated block in an organizational chart. They are a central node in a complex network: bringing in new skills does not just mean finding the right manager, but preparing the organization to welcome them.

- ✓ Overcoming the Peter Principle: avoiding promotions based solely on internal history when the role requires new skills.
- ✓ Managing historical internal figures who might hinder the onboarding of new leadership by mitigating systemic resistances.
- ✓ Mapping the friction points already present — across functions, processes, or areas of responsibility — that a new hire tends to bring back to the surface or amplify.

Distinguishing Real Aptitude (Micro)

Standard interviews only measure the ability to present oneself.

Integrated and value-driven assessment decodes the deep drivers of human behavior by combining:

The Tools I Deploy

An integrated method to identify, engage, and evaluate niche candidates.

- ✓ Market intelligence and data mining — Analysis of the target market and mapping of comparable companies, similar roles, and professional clusters consistent with the mandate.
- ✓ Assessment and psychometric reading — Big Five / NEO-PI-3 and HEXACO-PI-R to read personality, relational style, and areas to explore further during interviews.
- ✓ Integrated databases and GDPR-compliant data scrubbing — Shared dynamic databases and professional sources, with contact verification and cleaning (e.g. Lusha/Apollo/LinkedIn platforms), to turn raw lists into actionable pipelines.
- ✓ Reference check and validation — Structured verification of experiences, responsibilities, and coherence among background, motivations, and corporate context.
- ✓ Direct sourcing and networking — Targeted search and qualified relationships to reach profiles not visible or not active on the market.
- ✓ Consulting output — Clear and decision-oriented candidate dossiers: motivations, soft skills, availability, risks, and points for further investigation.

Assessment and Psychometric Reading

Two complementary tools, read together for a more triangulated picture of the candidate, distinguishing convergences and divergences between profiles.

✓ Big Five / NEO-PI-3

One of the most established models for reading personality across five dimensions: Neuroticism, Extraversion, Openness to Experience, Agreeableness, and Conscientiousness. NEO-PI-3 measures these areas and their corresponding sub-dimensions.

✓ HEXACO-PI-R

Adds a sixth dimension, Honesty-Humility, useful for observing fairness, transparency, modesty, and non-opportunistic orientation. It measures six dimensions: Honesty-Humility, Emotionality, Extraversion, Agreeableness, Conscientiousness, and Openness.

The value does not lie in a single tool, but in the combination of data, network, interview, assessment, and verification. This is where research becomes consulting.

Direct and Concrete Partnership

All these complex processes are guided with the agility of a true "private consultancy".

Dialogue without intermediaries: hands-on management of the entire process.

No mechanical processes: a totally tailor-made approach.

Exclusive dedication: working on a few mandates for a real optimized time-to-fill.

The fee positioning is consistent with a lean corporate structure and tends to be competitive.
